

Design & Access Statement

Made.com

100 Charing Cross Road

London WC2H 0JG

Concept

Made are hoping to create a single entrance on the corner of Charing Cross Road and Phoenix Street. The purpose of this is to control footfall and monitor customers. Several valuable small items will be on display and ipads/tablets will be handed to customers for internet browsing, so a single entrance would help in terms of security.

Additionally removing the entrances on Charing Cross and replacing with fixed glazing will allow for a more generous window display and add value to the street visually.

Access

In terms of access there are a number of existing fire exits in the building which will remain accessible and the new entrance will be a disabled access door.