

An architectural elevation rendering of a proposed multi-story building. The central portion of the building features a modern design with a flat roof, a series of vertical fins or columns, and a grid of windows. To the left, a section of the building has a pitched roof. To the right, an existing building with a classical facade, including arched windows and a pediment, is visible. The scene is landscaped with various trees and a low fence in the foreground. The rendering is presented in a light, sketchy style.
