As the overall height of the means of enclosure exceeds the allowance under permitted development, planning permission is required.

Our main issue will be visual appearance of the gates/railings and the existing character of this part of the estate – it is currently fairly open with low walls enclosing communal areas. It also sits opposite to the square itself which has buildings of heritage significance on the other side within a conservation area.

We also have a general policy objection to creating gated communities; however, I can see an argument that this would complete a scheme granted in 2004, which may make it acceptable to us.
