2018/6073/P	Rita Phillips	07/03/2019 12:07:11	COMMEMPER	Because of the inadequacy of the extractor system, there is a strong smell of burnt meat which permeates our flats and the surrounding area. A condition of approval should require that the Antalya install an extract system that goes up to roof level and which insures the quick dispersal of the smell rather than having it trapped within a garden area which is surrounded by tall buildings. I am told that kitchen discharges and smells are a frequent cause of complaint to councils. Councils can treat the smell as a statutory nuisance under the EPA 1990 act and can require mitigation measures to be undertaken.
