I also have concerns about the interference with my current electrical supplies (wireless router etc). Another major concern is the noise from the roof when its windy. As its a high rise block there are lots of high winds that already disturb sleep etc when the existing cables and other items on the roof get blown around and shake. I'd like to know what plans to insulate the area are? When was the flat roof last insulated/replaced? How long are the proposed works planned to take? What times of the day will the work commence?
