If you are applying for Technical Details Consent on a site that has been granted Permission In Principle, please include the relevant details in the description below.

A sculpture made from the geopolymer NOXtex which absorbs 15% by weight of NOX from the air. The sculpture represents a person 'frozen' in fabric, looking up in search for fresh air. The structure is made from a fabric impregnated with the geopolymer in units, then attached to a welding metal frame, and the whole piece will be filled with more geopolymer and fibre glass.

The structure will be attached to the wall of the Camden People's Theatre, sitting above what was the original entrance to the building. This will help to create a celebratory entrance to Drummond St, the art itself is complementary and sensitive to the Nash era architecture, and it will also emphasize the air quality issues of Euston and spark conversation about how we can reverse the effects of pollution.
