The design and rethink around the services provided have been updated to reflect our zeitgeist. Concerns around anti-social behaviour do still exist especially as there will be a USB powerpoint (a great idea for stranded tourists I know) which will support criminality in this area. A further point I would like to add is that all new street furniture and services should consider how they can reduce their environmental impact. In this instance a structure like this could lend itself well to reducing pollution by incorporating a living tree of moss such as https://airqualitynews.com/2018/03/19/citytree-pollution-moss-filter-launched-in-westminster/
