Unfortunately the height of the side extension is excessive and competes with the volume of the main building. Given the location of the building on the bend of the road, it is fully visible from the public highway and it appears overbearing. As regards the rear extension, its orientation, turning firmly away from the existing and original rear bay extension results in splitting the host building in two as if it was semi-detached. This is contrary to its original form as a single family dwelling and should be resisted.
