Dear Sirs,

52 Redington Road - Reference 2019/5221/P. Planning Application

I live in the adjacent road, Templewood Avenue which is very similar to Redington Road with many large houses and properties. Many of these properties already have gates fitted and these are considered necessary and actually fit in well with the properties.

I am aware of this planning application for new gates and extending existing railings at number 52 Redington Road and support it.

There are increasing problems with break-ins occurring to a number of properties and personal attacks in this area and I have talked with several local residents who are most concerned at this and the increasing criminal activities. They have also expressed their views that gates are essential.

There are existing old railing on the boundary of 52 Redington Road and the applicants are naturally extending these railings. I also welcome the design of the gates which are to be electric and note that they have actually been set back so as not to impact in any way on the road.

It seems a very practical and appropriate solution to permit this application, particularly considering the many neighbouring properties which already have fitted gates and similar boundary treatments. The designs in the proposed planning application are very appropriate and indeed desirable.

Yours truly

Neville Shulman CBE
