2019/6192/T	Peter Jacobs	17/12/2019 12:06:55	SUPPRT	I fully support the removal of these Leylandii. They have grown to be totally out of scale with their environment and how much bigger they will get is unknown. They cast very heavy shading on their surroundings and reduce light into some of the flats to their south. The fifth tree has already been removed due to disease and a drain under the road needed repairing due to root intrusion. They are not major contributors to native wildlife habitat. I can not underatand how Leylandii, considered nowadays to be virually a weed, ever came to be protected by TPOs. They should be replaced by trees more suitable for this location.
