2019/6192/T		31/12/2019 09:46:30	COMMNT	I do not agree with my near neighbours that the Leyland Cypress trees in Langbourne Avenue are beneficial to the area. They are out of control and uncontrollable. They block sunlight from the mansion blocks and suck life out of the surrounding area, especially the ground around the trees which is poisoned by the acid from their leaves. They are unnatural and should never have been planted. The sooner they get chopped down the sooner a more appropriate alternative can be planted, a better long term solution in my view, better for the birds and bats as well as the people. It would be best if possible to replace them with mature deciduous trees, much more appropriate for a London street.
