The trees in question are overbearing, intrude on the local environment (blocking out other species of plants), and prevent use of designated parking spots (they have damaged visitors' vehicles parked beneath). Removal of the overly large trees will improve slope stability due to the Ilex debris more readily blocking the drainage system. Their continued presence represents more of a risk to the hydrological stability (n.b., the trees themselves are not on the slope of Swain's Lane nor Hillway so local slope stability cannot be an issue). A more sustainable solution is the proposed planting of different species that do not dominate the local environment and offer very few benefits.
