It would be a shame to take down the wooden structure as it provides privacy and security to people like myself who enjoy sitting outside when having a coffee or food. The structure is very well made and it doesn't take up any space on either the pavement or the neighbouring shops on the Parade. It would be a shame for it to come down as it's such a huge part of the image that Pisu Cafe has.

If something lighter, more elegant and less permanent could be erected, that added charm to the parade rather than making it a bit of an eyesore. With all the bits added on and hanging off it turns into a mini shanty town.
