[REDACTED] thank you for your quick response. I believe that the trees are London plane trees, but of course, I'm not an expert.

Please see the attached photos.

We would like to prune the trees only at this point - have not spoken to a tree surgeon, but have contacted one today who is ARB approved. If I had to guess a percentage (subject to expert view), I'd guess about 25 - 30%. However if the surgeon recommends removal because of danger to surrounding areas of course we would let you know about that. See below photos of the wall and roots - the tree is leaning dangerously towards one neighbour's garden and shed.

Kind regards.
