2021/1598/T	Charles Marks	11/04/2021 18:50:04	COMMNT	As usual, insurance companies continue to wage their lone ware against all trees and vegetation surrounding insured buildings. They should be made to try all other remedial actions and use tree removal as a last resort, not as they currently do, a first resort. They have already outlined two alternatives to removal (root blocking and underpinning) and these should be used as opposed to the removal of important natural resources like trees that improve the quality of air and the general outlook of the environment. They should also be reminded that his is a conservation area and the trees make a considerable contribution to the appeal of the area.
