Dear Ms Quigley

I write as a local business holder in the Seven Dials area in support of the planning application proposed at 50 Earlham Street within the Seven Dials Warehouse. The development allows a temporary change of use to an art gallery for display of a private collection of Banksy's works.

London Graphic Centre is one of the largest and longest established Art Supplies retailers in central London, having traded from the Covent Garden & Seven Dials area since 1973.

The gallery operators have been working with us to ensure that the operation will have a positive impact on the local area, bringing footfall and public confidence to Seven Dials and encouraging visitors to our business, which is very important for economic recovery in the current climate.

We hope that this application will be approved and look forward to the opening of the gallery in May.

Yours sincerely,
