

Experience and Qualifications

I am an associate building services engineer for Caldwell consulting, with over 16 years experience within the building services industry, after graduating from the University of Ulster with both a HND and degree in electrical engineering, I became a member of the institution of engineering and technology (IET) and am currently within the later stages of completing my membership of chartership within my profession.

Caldwell consulting are a large building services practice with offices across both the UK and Ireland and over my career I have been fortunate to be involved in the completion of a range of secure by design developments, ranging from residential schemes for housing associations within Northern Ireland, HMRC New Waverley Edinburgh, Hampton by Hilton London and recently completed Novotel Hotel, Cambridge North.
