Dear Mr Young

Please can I object to the planning application for 106 King Henry's Road.

I live opposite the house in question and am already upset by how long the building project has taken. From my recollection there has been work onsite since early Spring 2020; and all of this time I have been forced to work at home by my employer for social distancing reasons, thus making building/tunneling/waste removal/ drilling noise a very big nuisance. For these reasons I object to the building project taking any longer than is vital to return the house to a basic habitable state.

In terms of design, the modern Chalcots Park Estate style already presents a difficult architectural mix in a street of otherwise early-Victorian houses. To add a storey to one house in a row of otherwise two storey houses will make the mix even worse.

Furthermore, permitting an additional storey could encourage the neighbouring houses to make their own extension plans. The road is already suffering a significant increase in traffic during the part-closure of Adelaide Road, HS2 works and fibre laying. House and garden wall foundations have already been compromised and any more building work could cause more damage to property and eventually pose a threat to the public.

Thank you
Rebecca Chesworth
