2021/5286/T	Jonathan Harris	25/11/2021 21:11:56	OBJ	My wife and I are staggered that in this day and age of environmental crisis this proposal is even being considered. Unless there is a danger to life and limb this would be nothing short of vandalism .London plane trees are an iconic feature of London and Bloomsbury in particular and should be protected in their entirety. I am a Bloomsbury resident, a Camden council tax payer and a Member of the British Museum and I vehemently oppose these plans. Camden Council and the Bedford Estate have been enthusiastically planting new street trees in recent times which will take 20-50 years to reach maturity so at the same time it would be ridiculous to mutilate mature trees. Trees should be sacrosanct. Too many mature trees have already been chopped down in the area whether at Euston station or outside the Shaftesbury Theatre. Progress is unachievable unless all trees are fully protected .If this proposal is allowed it will send the wrong signal to developers and other entities who regard trees as mere street furniture.
