I would think a solution can be found to rebuild the retention wall while keeping the tree. Replanting is not a reasonable solution as it would take decades for the young tree to mature (if it does survive). That's what TPO is about. Plenty of other trees are been removed within this application (and across Camden), we should at least keep the ones under TPO, else I don't understand the purpose of having a TPO. It is the council duty to enforce this protection. Aside from the removal of this tree, I do not have any other objection regarding the planing proposal.
