As the flat holder of the first floor flat in the property I would like to have conservation of the rear lateral chimney stack as this allows for a necessary flue in case of heating in the room beneath in the first floor flat, which has an original fireplace and chimney in situ.

I note the additional staircase and also the potential for increased occupancy, so acoustic separation to good standard will be important to reduce sound impact in my flat below.

Otherwise, being in a conservation area, roof tiles, velux and dormer windows will need to be of appropriate quality and appearance.
