We are writing to object to the Murphy's Yard development near Hampstead Heath, as currently proposed. The Heath and its southerly views of the London skyline is unique. We are not objecting to the need for some new housing, but we are objecting to the heights and density of the new buildings. They are an eyesore and would ruin the present ambience of the area as a whole. They are just too big and too ugly.

The greatly increased density of people using the Heath would inevitably compromise the very nature of the Heath.

Some development yes, but over-development on the scale planned would be a disaster for a very special part of London.
