Hi Camden Council,

I am writing this email to voice my concerns about the plans to cut down two huge London plane trees (the trees at 8 Doughty St).

I am a resident of Camden, specifically living on Millman Street. Every day these trees form part of a tranquil and restful experience when I get the opportunity to look out of my window. The trees are also an important part of the local ecosystem for birds and other wildlife, please take a look, every branch seems to have a wildlife nest. It would be a great tragedy that the trees are removed as they are a positive thing for the residents physical and mental well being.

London has already removed enough trees, we have an opportunity to preserve these natural structures. I have been informed that plans are being outlined by a leading structural engineer and a tree expert to help preserve these trees so they can co-exist in harmony with other buildings.

We all have a responsibility to reduce pollution and global warming, saving these trees would set a great example for us and our future generation.

I hope the council can reconsider their decision and ensure we protect these natural wonders.

Kind regards
Ahmed
