2022/0792/T	G Power	05/03/2022 11:20:12	OBJ	3 mature ash trees - these trees take decades to get to this height, and the ash is a native tree, and hence hosts a huge amount of biodiversity. These trees look as if they were among an early introduction in the neighbourhood, so one of the original features of the area. Felling these trees would be an environmental and health crime for the neighbourhood, depriving future residents and existing residents of much-needed 'nature', as well as going against all current thinking of the need for trees (and native trees in particular) for people's mental health, quality of life, physical health as well as helping in cutting carbon levels and stopping climate change... and providing privacy. Camden should think about the common good rather than the desire of an individual ¿ which would take decades to amend.
