It is crucial to point out that our bedroom window is located only a few metres away from the property and location of the existing single fan outdoor unit. My questions are: could the new Air Source Heat Pump be moved as far away as possible from our bedroom window (this is an essential point for us to support the application)? How many decibels will it produce? Will there be a constant hum? Can the pump be sound proofed (building a casing lined with sound insulation)? With regards to the windows, in order to protect the privacy of the garden, I believe that obscure glass should be used.
