We live further up the Crescent and have small children. Due to the current height of the wall, it easily becomes a ledge to rest drinks on and encourages people to loiter, usually drinking, smoking etc. They can be noisy and feel threatening to residents and passers by. Raising the wall seems to be a practical strategy to discourage people from hanging around on the corner, and the proposal is sensitive to the character and charm of the house.

2022/2307/L	RICHARD COTTON	27/06/2022 19:39:41	COMM	I believe this application is for a modest increase in the boundary wall, which will be sufficient to deter anti-social behaviour without adversely impacting on the aesthetic quality of the streetscape. Many of the houses in Gloucester Crescent already have higher boundary walls than this. The situation of this house at the junction of Gloucester Crescent and Inverness Street and the fact that his house was the scene of a very famous film has made it a magnet for groups causing noise and placing drinks on the wall, which would be made more difficult with a higher wall. I am therefore in favour of this application.
