Dear Matthew

The above application was discussed at a recent meeting of the Bloomsbury Conservation Areas Advisory Committee.

We object to the erection of metal mesh cladding on existing railings bordering Westminster Kingsway College. The College lies within the Bloomsbury Conservation Area, and although the railings may be reproductions of the original, they form a distinct part of the character of the Conservation Area.

There is no justification for the introduction of cladding to the railings which will alter their appearance, detract from the Conservation Area, and impact on views along Sidmouth Street from Regent Square.

Kind regards

Debbie Radcliffe
