Dear Mr Marfleet,

I attended a meeting organised by GOSH yesterday evening with Mr William McCready appearing to be the person responsible. It was, as someone remarked like a car-boot sale with people milling around looking at plans and photographs on display. It was ineffective as a consultation exercise and clearly planned to avoid any coherent feedback from local residents and businesses. Will it be possible for you to make it clear to GOSH that it will be a requirement of the planning approval and construction management plan that GOSH sets up a series of discussion meetings whose members will then elect a chairman to run a community liaison group funded by GOSH covering the duration of the project?

Kind regards

Peter Crossley
