Dear Mr Marfleet

I am deeply concerned about GOSH Children's Cancer Centre building plans and the effect any such work would have on the local area, particularly on traffic and pollution.

GOSH's plans for all the heavy lorries etc to access the site from Great Ormond's Street would put further stress on the neighbouring streets and Queen's Square. It could also cause worse jams along the 'rat run' from the south end of Herbrand Street into Coram Street.

GOSH should expand on a new site rather than develop into skyscrapers at its present site.

Yours sincerely

Juliet Gardner
