Dear Sirs,

I live in and have been

concerned about this application which has been revised following discussion.

My objection is that the scale of the existing building is so obviously at odds with the Bloomsbury of which everyone is so fond, that to replace it with something even bigger would be extremely regrettable.

Retention of the existing structure, preferably reclad, or the use of more sympathetic materials on a replacement, same size, building, is what this objector would prefer to see.

Yours faithfully,

Derek Parkes.
